EBOLA TRAVEL ADVISORY FOR TRAVELLERS BETWEEN SOUTH AFRICA AND WEST AFRICA

Liberia and Guinea have been declared free of Ebola. However, a single case was reported in Sierra Leone on 15 January 2015.

The risk of Ebola virus disease transmission has greatly diminished therefore; travelers to/from Liberia, Guinea and Sierra Leone to/from South Africa do not require prior application and approval.

A number of measures for epidemic preparedness and response remain in place to prevent the introduction of the disease into South Africa. These include thermal screening and use of a travel health questionnaire at the ports of entry.
